Many people’s impressions are that the biblical Book of Revelation is violent and fearsome, portending disasters for the world. But Prof. Barbara Rossing argues that Revelation takes us on a journey of peace, into the heart of God’s transformative vision of healing for our world, following the Lamb, Jesus. We will enter into the symbolism of Revelation— the four horsemen, the dragon and beasts, the bride and whore—not as a predictive script but as liberating vision. In place of a militaristic prophecy industry of Rapture and end-times, we will explore the book’s interpretive power through art and liturgy. Most of all, we will consider how the tree of life, and the river of the water of life, offers an ecological vision for our future on Earth—for a world that will not be left behind.

The Rev. Dr. Barbara Rossing is professor of New Testament at the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, where she directs the seminary’s environmental ministry emphasis. Rossing earned a Bachelor of Arts in Geology from Carleton College, a Master of Divinity from Yale University Divinity School, and a Doctor of Theology from Harvard University. As a public theologian, her media appearances have included CBS’ “60 Minutes” as well as The History Channel, National Geographic, “Living the Questions,” and numerous print and radio interviews. Her publications include “The Rapture Exposed: The Message of Hope in the Book of Revelation” (Basic Books, 2004); “The Choice Between Two Cities: Whore, Bride, and Empire in the Apocalypse” (Trinity Press, 1999); a nine-session Bible study, “Journeys Through Revelation: Apocalyptic Hope for Today” (Presbyterian Women, 2010); and articles and book chapters on the apocalypse and ecology.
