

Strengthening Autism and IDD Services Through System-Wide Clinical Leadership

As part of the Woods System of Care, Bridgeway Behavioral Health Services is pleased to welcome Nina Wall, MSS, LSW, and Jordan Hollander, BCBA, who will serve as leaders for Autism Clinical Strategy, Excellence, and Training. Their expertise strengthens Bridgeway's autism and IDD services and supports our staff in delivering high-quality, person-centered care to individuals and families.

Expanding Expertise to Support Better Outcomes

Bridgeway serves individuals throughout northern and central New Jersey who have autism and intellectual and developmental disabilities along with co-occurring behavioral health disorders. Through Woods System of Care's investment in autism-focused clinical leadership, Bridgeway is gaining even more access to advanced expertise, training, and collaborative resources that enhance care quality, expand service capacity, and support sustainable program growth.

Nina Wall, MSS, LSW brings more than 20 years of leadership in autism systems development, policy, clinical practice, and advocacy. A nationally recognized expert, she previously served as the founding Director of the Bureau of Autism Services for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, helping shape statewide initiatives that continue to improve access and outcomes for individuals with autism.

Jordan Hollander, BCBA has more than 15 years of experience providing person-centered behavioral interventions for individuals with autism and IDD. He previously served as a Senior Clinical Consultant to Pennsylvania's Bureau of Autism Services and as the founding Clinical Director for the Therapeutic Recovery Team within the Bureau of State Operated Facilities. His work focuses on strengthening clinical practice, workforce development, and service quality across care settings.

Advancing Integrated Autism Care

Serving as a hub for innovation and collaboration, the Woods System of Care initiative partners with behavioral health providers such as Bridgeway to strengthen support systems and improve outcomes for individuals with autism and/or intellectual and developmental disabilities who also have co-occurring behavioral health disorders. Key focus areas include clinical consultation, capacity-building, systems innovation, and coordinated networks that expand access to integrated, multidisciplinary care while respecting provider autonomy.

Building on its more than 100-year history of providing compassionate, innovative care, the Woods System of Care is expanding autism-capacity through early intervention, diagnostic services, outpatient therapy, psychiatric medication management, , primary care, and community-based supports. This aligns closely with Bridgeway's mission to provide integrated, whole-person care that responds to the unique needs of individuals with autism and IDD.

Through this partnership, Bridgeway continues to strengthen its services while ensuring our staff are supported by leading autism professionals and best-in-class clinical expertise, all in the service of better outcomes for the individuals and families we serve.
