

A Stronger Network of Care: Bridgeway and the Woods System of Care

Bridgeway Behavioral Health Services is proud to be an affiliate of the Woods System of Care, a nationally recognized nonprofit network dedicated to advancing integrated, person-centered care for children, adults, and families with complex behavioral health, intellectual and developmental disability, and trauma-related needs.

Founded more than a century ago, Woods System of Care brings together a diverse group of organizations that share a commitment to clinical excellence, innovation, and access to care. Through this collaborative network, affiliates benefit from shared clinical expertise, research, training, and evidence-based best practices, while maintaining strong local leadership and deep community connections.

“Being part of the Woods System of Care strengthens our ability to serve individuals and families with increasingly complex needs,” said Cory Storch, President and CEO of Bridgeway Behavioral Health Services. “It allows Bridgeway to remain community-based and person-centered, while also drawing on national expertise and proven models of care.”

For Bridgeway, the affiliation enhances our capacity to deliver high-quality, responsive behavioral health services across northern and central New Jersey. Through Woods System of Care, Bridgeway has access to specialized clinical consultation, system-wide quality initiatives, and shared learning across a national network of providers.

“From a clinical and operational perspective, the Woods affiliation enhances how care is aligned, informed, and delivered across our programs,” said Buddy Garfinkle, Executive Vice President and Chief Program Officer. “It strengthens our ability to integrate evidence-based practices, clinical consultation, and outcomes-informed frameworks in ways that support consistency, quality, and responsiveness across services.”

Leaders at Woods System of Care point to Bridgeway’s people and programs as a model of high-quality, community-based care.

“An organization is only as good as the people they employ. As a systems partner, board member, and donor, I continue to be amazed by Bridgeway’s exceptional team and the high-quality behavioral healthcare they provide. Their dedication, professionalism, and compassion truly set them apart and make a lasting impact on the individuals and communities they serve,” says Tine Hansen-Turton, MGA, JD, FCPP, FAAN, President and CEO, Woods System of Care.

The Woods affiliation reinforces Bridgeway’s long-standing commitment to person-centered, recovery-oriented care. By collaborating with other mission-driven organizations across the network, Bridgeway continues to advance integrated approaches that support stability, independence, and long-term wellness.

“Our partnership with Woods is about learning, sharing, and raising the bar for care,” Storch added. “It creates opportunities for collaboration that directly benefit the people we serve, while also supporting our staff with advanced training and clinical excellence.”

While Bridgeway remains firmly rooted in the communities it serves, its connection to Woods System of Care allows the organization to think bigger, adapt faster, and continue evolving to meet the changing behavioral health needs of the region.

About Woods System of Care

Woods System of Care is a nationally recognized nonprofit organization headquartered in Langhorne, Pennsylvania, with affiliates and programs across the country. Woods provides integrated health, behavioral health, and human services for children, adults, and families with complex needs, partnering with community-based organizations to strengthen systems of care and improve outcomes nationwide.