

The National Coalition for Promoting Physical Activity invites you to attend

Investing in Physical Activity

Creating an Active America Together

When: Thursday, May 18, 2017 from 9:30 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.

Where: 1310 Longworth House Office Building, Washington DC

Physical inactivity continues to impose an enormous burden to our health care system, economy, national security and the health of the American people. A significant federal investment in actions to promote physical activity and physical fitness would improve population health, reduce suffering from chronic disease, reverse soaring medical costs, improve labor productivity and military readiness, and increase our children's academic performance in schools. Join us for this briefing as we discuss the importance of a comprehensive effort to increase physical activity in the United States.

Speakers

Jack Groppe, PhD, FACSM, FACN – Co-Founder, Johnson & Johnson Human Performance Institute

Chris Jordan, MS, CSCS, NSCA-CPT, ACSM HFI/APT – Director of Exercise Physiology, Johnson & Johnson Human Performance Institute

David C. Osborne – Colonel (Ret.), U.S. Army

Ruth Petersen, MD, MPH – Director, CDC Division of Nutrition, Physical Activity, and Obesity

Laurie Whitsel, PhD, FAHA – Director of Policy Research, American Heart Association

Moderated by Tom Richards, JD – Director of Corporate Engagement, American Council on Exercise

Thank you to Congressman Rodney Davis for sponsoring this event.

* Light breakfast will be served.

Please share with any interested parties and R.S.V.P. to Ayanna McKnight at ayanna@ncppa.org