CONFLICT RESOLUTION AND PEACEBUILDING

Call for Papers

Peace, as often said, is not merely the absence of war; rather, it is a state of wellbeing with oneself and others. Though peaceful living may sound rather easy, this has significant demands for our relationship with ourselves, others and nature. Peace is often disrupted by conflicts. In general, it can be said that a conflict is caused by struggles between two ideas fighting to occupy the same space at the same time. Not infrequently conflicts happen at personal, communitarian, national and international levels, sometimes leading to death and suffering of hundreds and thousands of people. Peacebuilding is an attempt to create a better place for humanity to live in through meditation, negotiation and reconciliation process between disagreeing parties. There are different agencies—religious and others—and individuals working on peacebuilding, sometimes even risking their own lives.

It may be paradoxical that religions have sometimes become the cause of conflicts and disruption of peace. However, in general, religions uphold the basic message of peace and harmony. September 2021 issue of Asian Horizons is dedicated to the reflection on Conflict Resolution and Peacebuilding. Although peacebuilding is a task that involves multiple agents, we focus on the Catholic theological tradition on conflict resolution and peacebuilding, and various initiatives inspired by faith experience.
