

CELEBRATING THE SEASON, CONTINUING TRADITIONS

Some traditions are too special to mess with, and the Jessamine County Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony is one of them. For approximately 30 years, residents and visitors have gathered at the Jessamine County Courthouse, located at 101 N. Main St. in Nicholasville and ushered in the holiday season with a traditional Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony. And even though the Courthouse is currently in the midst of a major renovation and repair project, this year will be no exception.

“We’ll take extra care to ensure everyone’s safety, but we’re not going to let the work being done on and around the Courthouse stop us from continuing what has become such an important part of so many Jessamine County families’ holiday season,” Jessamine County Judge/Executive David K. West said. “Like our beautiful Courthouse, we expect our Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony to continue into the next century—and beyond.”

For more info, visit www.jessamineco.com or “Jessamine County, Kentucky” on Facebook.