Fighting Poverty and Enhancing Dignity in the 21st Century

The Intensive Incubation Program of the NJHSA Jewish Poverty Challenge, an initiative of the Network's Center for Innovation & Research, is completing year one with three deserving agencies who are eagerly attacking the challenges of developing a successful road map for their high impact and sustainable solutions to Jewish poverty.

Professor H. Luke Shaefer, inaugural director of Poverty Solutions at University of Michigan, will begin by sharing his research on poverty and social welfare policy in the United States. Then, we will dive into a facilitated conversation led by StartCo President Andre Fowlkes with representatives from the three winning NJHSA agencies/communities.

Then, we will dive into a facilitated conversation led by StartCo President Andre Fowlkes with representatives from JFS Columbus, JFCS Philadelphia and JFS Detroit/JVS Human Services Detroit and Yad Ezra; the three NJHSA agencies/communities which have participated in the Intensive Incubation Program of the NJHSA Jewish Poverty Challenge.
