

Mo (Isom) Aiken is a New York Times bestselling author, a nationally sought-after speaker, and a powerful voice rising up for her generation. In her younger years, she was an All-American goalkeeper for the LSU Women's Soccer team and the first female to train with and try out for an SEC men's football team. Her life was riddled with great personal tragedy – including battling an eating disorder, overcoming the suicide of her father, struggling with promiscuity, and surviving a horrific car accident. But by the grace of God, alone, she encountered the love and mercy of Jesus – the Great Deliverer and the One who makes all things new. She is now a Holy Spirit-filled daughter of God who isn't afraid to speak bold, raw, courageous Truth to a generation being crushed under the weight of their sin, their circumstances and the lies of the enemy.

She has the incredible privilege of communicating by authoring books and blogs, speaking all across the country, and engaging the masses on social media. Her three books Wreck My Life: Journeying from Broken to Bold, Sex, Jesus, and the Conversations the Church Forgot and Fully Known: An Invitation to True Intimacy with God have reached tens of thousands of people worldwide and her messages of hope, transformation and timely, Holy Spirit-lead revelation have been featured on countless other platforms.

She is a wife to Jeremiah, and a mom to two spunky daughters—Auden and Asher—and two sweet sons, Ronan and Elijah! Atlanta, GA is home base for her family in between their RV adventures across the USA. Learn more about Mo at moisom.com or on instagram @moisom and @5thwheelmissions.
