About Us

The quarterly peer-reviewed Journal of Special Operations Medicine (JSOM) was established in 2000 by the United States Special Operations Command Surgeon's Office as a tool to promote education among all Special Operations Forces (SOF) medical personnel.

The JSOM is the Official Journal of the Special Operations Medical Association (SOMA). We maintain scientific exchanges and agreements with the SOMA Scientific Assembly, the Australian Tactical Medical Association (ATMA), the National Tactical Officers' Association (NTOA), and the Wilderness Medical Society.

The JSOM transcends the boundary between military and civilian medicine by bringing forth practical and sensible ideas and techniques to the civilian Tactical Emergency Medical Support (TEMS) provider currently operating in a law enforcement environment. The Journal is the only published venue that brings military SOF, civilian, and government agencies with tactical medical assets together in one forum to promote the sharing of knowledge of this unique tradecraft. It updates the current medical providers on new trends in the field of Special Operations medical care and equipment and provides invaluable, current information that saves lives on the battlefield, whether overseas or urban. Many host nation military and civilians also benefit from the diffusion of medical knowledge that the JSOM imparts.

The JSOM is the only journal devoted to the practice of unconventional medicine in the austere, remote, tactical, and operational environment.

Our Audience

Special Operations Forces worldwide, national and international conventional military, and civilian — physicians, medics, dentists, and veterinarians; TEMS personnel on federal, state, and local tactical teams; EMS; and medical and paramedic school students, both military and civilian.
