Provincetown COVID-19 Resource Guide Available Online

Helping Our Women (HOW) – is pleased to share a new resource publication entitled the “Provincetown COVID-19 Resource Guide”. This publication represents the services and resources available to people living in Provincetown. During this public health crisis people may need extra support. This is an easy way for all Provincetown residents to learn about and access available services, because it is okay to ask for help and this guide shows you how.

The resource guide is a result of the Provincetown Health Department's "Meeting Needs" collaboration among town agencies, non-profits, healthcare providers and the faith-based community. At the invitation of Morgan Clark, Provincetown Health Director, the Meeting Needs group began weekly calls in March to share resources and keep open channels of communication. Currently, this group meets monthly and is prepared to resume weekly meetings as needed during the upcoming months.

"I hope this resource guide will be spread like autumn leaves and show up everywhere in all sectors of Provincetown's on-line communities," stated Gwynne Guzzeau, Executive Director for HOW, " the funding Helping Our Women received from Cape Cod Healthcare to increase access to healthcare and wellness made the professional design and formatting of this guide possible."

For over 25 years, Helping Our Women (HOW) has built a strong system of supportive services to meet the needs and empower women with chronic, life threatening or disabling medical conditions living in Provincetown, Truro, Wellfleet and Eastham. HOW also provides advocacy, referrals and resources to all community members. For access to the “Provincetown COVID-19 Resource Guide” visit
