

University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign
Illinois Center for Transition and Work
Positions Open

The Illinois Center for Transition and Work at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (UIUC) is a newly funded state-wide training and technical assistance center that focuses on transition from school to work for students with significant disabilities (e.g., intellectual disability, multiple disabilities, autism). This is an interdisciplinary project involving collaboration between the departments of special education and vocational rehabilitation at UIUC. We are seeking to fill the following positions:

Training Specialist – Join our team of training specialists to develop materials and resources aligned with best practices in transition from school to work, create and deliver innovative professional development across the state, provide intensive technical assistance to schools, and facilitate statewide interagency coordination. The position is open until filled. Please complete your candidate profile at <http://jobs.illinois.edu> or contact David Strauser at strauser@illinois.edu for more information.

Post-Doctoral Research Associate – This position is designed for scholars with expertise in school to work transition for students with significant disabilities (e.g., intellectual disability, multiple disabilities, autism) who wish to expand their leadership, teaching, and research skills specific to creating state-wide systems change across Illinois. The Post-Doctoral Research Associate position is a full-time (100% FTE), 2-year position. For more information, please contact Stacy Dymond at sdymond@illinois.edu.
