IBERÁ LODGE

IBERÁ MARSHLANDS, CORRIENTES, ARGENTINA

The beautiful estancia of Iberá Lodge, located in the heart of Northern Argentina's Iberá Marshland, gives anglers front-door access to one of the most pristine ecological preserve in the world. This river and marsh system is more than twice the size of Florida's Everglades National Park and it is every bit as wild.

The marsh teems not only with incredible migratory birds, caiman, capybara and marsh deer, but is Argentina's gold standard for its Dorado fishery. You would be hard pressed to find a more breathtaking place to stand on the bow of a flats skiff, casting streamers, mice and poppers for fish such as these. These golden predators are acrobatic and eat a fly like they are out to kill. From sight-fishing the labyrinth of the marsh's headwaters to exploring the lower reaches of the Corrientes River, every day is a new adventure.

Off the water, Iberá Lodge is equally impressive and inspiring. This architectural treasure has long been a haven for those in search of comfort, fine dining and authentic Argentine hospitality. A country riverside experience with a wonderful touch of elegance.

THE FISHING

Dorado fishing at Iberá takes places in one of the planet's largest ecological preserves. It's lush and wild. The marsh "floating grass" islands are always shifting and moving, making the marsh truly alive and dynamic.

The fishery can be divided into two hemispheres: the Marsh as the headwaters, and the Corrientes River located downstream of the Lodge. You'll be provided the opportunity to explore both of these two distinctly different environments and learn the various waters for chasing dorado.

The intricate Marsh is comprised of streams, lagoons, and side-channels. Big Dorado annually push into this skinny-water utopia. Here, we typically fish from the bow of our Hell's Bay skiffs, one angler at a time. When water conditions are low, there can be great wade-fishing opportunities.

The stunning Corriente River is the perfect set up swinging and stripping streamers from the banks of the river. In the deeper pools, sinking lines are used, but intermediate and floating lines can work as well. The average fish ranges from 4 to 8lbs, but many are caught over 10 lbs. all the way to 20+ lbs. Last season's biggest dorado weighed in at 27.5 lbs. on the scales.

We fish a variety of flies from mouse patterns to streamers. This spectacular ecosystem is brimming with wildlife and is one of the most productive environments for Dorado in all of Argentina.

IBERÁ MARSHLANDS RESERVE

Comparable in size to Yellowstone Park, at 3 million acres the Iberá Wetlands is a breathtakingly massive wetland complex located in north east Argentina.

The Iberá is a critically important freshwater reserve for the region and also acts as a spawning grounds for golden dorado and other fish. It is also a sanctuary to more than 350 bird species, as well as to deer, capybara and caiman.

The Iberá reserve is so large and so remote that there are reportedly over 100 indigenous subsistence-living families in the marsh, where they live peacefully and secretly in huts, and little is known about their hidden lives in this blue and green jewel of endless marshland.

If fly fishing is your passion—consider the Gage Outdoor family of lodges.
