A comprehensive approach to Early EMDR Interventions, Recent Trauma Episode Protocol (RTEP) and Group Trauma Episode Protocol (GTEP) are researched informed, highly effective strategies to reprocess recent traumas as well as building resilience during ongoing traumatic events. RTEP and GTEP, developed by Elan Shapiro, MA and Bruit Laub, PhD focus on safety and containment, given the nature of recent traumatic events. Both Protocols are easily adapted to Tele-behavioral Health, particularly in emphasizing containment and safety. Given the myriad of ways the COVID-19 pandemic, person-made and natural disasters are creating trauma individually and within communities throughout the world, these protocols are particularly useful and timely.

Through lecture, videos, demonstrations and practicums, participants will be able to:

- Identify when Early EMDR Intervention is appropriate.
- Compare the EMDR standard protocol and EMDR R-TEP protocol.
- Demonstrate Early EMDR clinical skills with additional measures for containment and safety.
- Describe EMD, EMDr, EMDR and how each is applied.
- Identify key features and concepts for the R-TEP protocol.
- Use key procedures for the R-TPEP protocol.
- Identify key features and concepts of the Group Traumatic Episode Protocol (G-TEP).
- Demonstrate the bilateral movements within the G-TEP protocol utilizing the G-TEP worksheet.
- Use key procedures for the G-TEP protocol.
- Demonstrate the ability to apply the Group Traumatic Episode Protocol (G-TEP) in their clinical practice.
- Evaluate the significance of the G-TEP and Early Intervention.
- Identify resources for further support in the delivery of R-TEP/G-TEP.
