

Examining Racism - Looking Inward First

In America today, we recognize that racial discrimination persists in private and public settings -throwing up significant barriers to equality and opportunity. But what can we as individuals do to overcome these obstacles and make meaningful change? First, we must begin with ourselves: understanding the biases we all carry, and how they affect our own lives and our interactions with other people.

In a two-session, interactive workshop, we will explore our feelings about concepts such as white privilege and white supremacy, learn how negative messages are embedded in microaggressions, and focus on how implicit bias acts as the social glue that keeps racism in place. Session 1 will meet on Wednesday, February 20, and is a requisite to attending session 2 on Wednesday, February 27, 2019. Both sessions are scheduled 10:00 am to noon and will be led by TJC members from the board of Not in Our Town, the Princeton anti-racism organization, and from the TJC Social Action Committee.

Open to TJC members - no registration fee. Enrollment is limited to 14 participants.
Session #1 is a requisite to attending session #2.

To register for this two-session series, contact Roni Garrison vgarrison@thejewishcenter.org or call 609-921-0100 Ext. 200.

Any questions? Contact Linda Oppenheim linda.oppenheim@gmail.com or 609-462-0421.