

JAY DANTO, DO

Biography

Jay B. Danto, D.O., is a highly experienced osteopathic physician and medical educator with a strong academic background. He currently serves as Associate Dean of Osteopathic Integration, OMM Interim Department Chair, and Professor at D'Youville University – College of Osteopathic Medicine, proposed (DYU-COM). Dr. Danto holds a Doctor of Osteopathy degree and a B.S. in Psychology from Michigan State University (1994 and 1989, respectively). He completed an Internal Medicine Internship (1995) and a Family Practice Residency (1997) at St. John – Oakland Hospital/Michigan State University. Dr. Danto is Board Certified in Family Practice (1997) and Osteopathic Neuromusculoskeletal Medicine/Osteopathic Manipulative Medicine (2002), and he holds a Certification of Special Proficiency in Osteopathy in the Cranial Field (2002).

Dr. Danto has actively contributed to the osteopathic profession through extensive teaching at undergraduate and graduate professional levels, including international courses. He has also demonstrated leadership through his many years as faculty at numerous colleges of osteopathic medicine and involvement with osteopathic professional organizations, like the Osteopathic Cranial Academy, the National Board of Osteopathic Medical Examiners (NBOME) and the American Academy of Osteopathy (AAO). His scholarly activities include numerous presentations and publications in journals such as the Journal of Osteopathic Medicine (JOM), American Academy of Osteopathy Journal (AAOJ), and the International Journal of Osteopathic Medicine, focusing on diverse osteopathic and medical education topics. Dr. Danto's multifaceted career reflects his dedication to advancing osteopathic medicine through education, leadership, and scholarly endeavors.

Currently, Dr. Danto serves as the Vice Chair of the OMM Postdoctoral Training Committee for the AAO & AOA. He is also on the Executive Board of the Osteopathic Cranial Academy. At DYU-COM, he is the Chair of the Curriculum Committee, the Vice Chair of the Academic Appointment & Promotions Committee and serves on the Graduate Medical Education Committee.