

SCUBA Auction to Benefit Shark Conservation

Shark Angels, a U.S. based non-profit, is excited to announce their annual World Oceans Day Online SCUBA Auction, launching on May 27th and going until June 9, 2024.

Participants can bid on scuba diving packages to exciting locales across the world, with the opportunity to get scuba gear and underwater artwork. By bidding on these items, participants support the Shark Angels' innovative education and advocacy programs that help turn fear into fascination and passion into action whilst also scoring great deals on trips.

"This year, we've got loads more trips and gear thanks to the generosity of our donors to tempt any kind of diver. From land based and liveaboard adventures to exotic locales like Fiji, the Philippines, Palau and the Caribbean. Dive with whale sharks in the Maldives, reef sharks in the Caribbean and manta rays in Raja Ampat. We even have some amazing SCUBA gear and shark artwork up for auction. Bidders can get great deals knowing that their money will be put to good use." says Executive Director, Jamie Pollack.

The health of the world's oceans depends on healthy shark populations, and every organism on earth depends on healthy oceans. By participating in the auction and helping spread the auction link, you too can play a part in preserving this essential ecosystem!

Shark Angels is a non-profit shark conservation organization that advocates for sharks and our beautiful blue planet by turning fear of sharks into fascination, and empowering the public through science, education, diving, legislation, and outreach. Earn your wings and make a difference by bidding on these thrilling SCUBA adventures.
