Aqualung Reintroduces FitFlex: The Wetsuit Designed for a Better Fit — Available Now

Aqualung is reintroducing the FitFlex 3mm wetsuit, a two-piece system designed to provide a more personalized, comfortable fit for divers. Now back in stock and available through authorized Aqualung dealers, FitFlex addresses a common challenge in dive gear: achieving the right wetsuit fit.

Originally developed to offer greater flexibility and ease of use, the FitFlex stands apart from traditional wetsuits by allowing divers to purchase the jacket and pants separately. This modular design enables divers to mix and match sizes for a more precise, body-specific fit.

Gearing up for underwater adventures is quicker and easier thanks to the two-piece construction that simplifies donning and doffing and improves comfort across multiple dive days.

"Fit can be one of the bigger challenges divers face with wetsuits," said Megan Ehrenberg, HEAD Watersports North American Marketing Manager. "By offering the top and bottom as separate pieces, FitFlex allows divers to truly customize their fit. It removes the compromise of traditional sizing and creates a more comfortable, more confident experience in the water."

Designed for warm water diving and travel, the FitFlex combines premium materials with performance-driven features:

- Super Stretch Neoprene with up to 3x the flexibility of standard neoprene
- Two-Piece Modular Design for customizable fit and convenience
- Embossed Connection System to reduce water entry and enhance warmth
- Smooth Skin Seals for improved comfort and reduced flushing
- Powertex Kneepads for durability in high-wear areas
- Eco-Friendly Construction using water-based adhesives

Available in men's and women's sizes, the FitFlex is built for divers who want a wetsuit that adapts to their body, not the other way around.
