Kentucky	Executive Action	Executive Press Release	Governor Andy Beshear (D) announced the launch of "Healthy at Work," a new initiative to help Kentucky businesses reopen safely as we fight the novel coronavirus 2019 (COVID-19). "We want to make sure that when we hit that mark, knowing that we may only know five days in, that we're ready and that when it is safe to do something, we can immediately start doing it," the Governor said. But he warned against opening up too soon. "When we look at the long-term reopening of the economy, we do it by not being foolish or making risky decisions," He said. "It's how we come out of this strong."  The plan offers a phased approach to reopening Kentucky's economy. It is based on criteria set by public health experts and advice from industry experts. During Phase 1 of Healthy at Work, the Kentucky Department for Public Health will determine whether Kentucky has met certain public health benchmarks for reopening Kentucky's economy. These benchmarks closely follow the White House's Guidelines for Reopening America. During Phase 2 of Healthy at Work, the Department for Public Health will evaluate individual businesses' ability to safely reopen.  During Phase 2 of Healthy at Work, the Department for Public Health will evaluate individual businesses' ability to safely reopen. Businesses closed due to COVID-19 may begin submitting reopen proposals via the online reopen application. The Department for Public Health will evaluate these proposals based on White House guidelines and other government benchmarks. Among other things, each business proposal is required to explain its ability to provide personal protective equipment (PPE) to employees, adequate access to hand sanitizer and disinfectant, and minimal direct contact between employees and the public. Maine	Executive Action	Executive Press Release	Governor Janet Mills (D) has issued the following statement in response to the President's Guidelines for Opening Up America Again:  "We all want life to return to normal as soon as it is safe to do so. Our hearts break to see closed storefronts and people struggling to make ends meet because of this crisis. At the same time, we all know that reopening too soon and too aggressively will likely cause a secondary surge in COVID 19 cases, jeopardizing the lives of Maine people and further destabilizing the economy. None of us want that. I have been speaking with a number of economic leaders, including the President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. Their message is clear: the most important thing we can do to turn the economy around is to defeat the virus. As the President acknowledges, the Governors are in charge of reopening their states' economies and gradually lifting public health restrictions. Here in Maine, we too are planning a phased-in reopening, tailored to the demographics and various economic sectors of our state. Ultimately, the protocols we adopt, made after consulting with people from all parts of the state, will be guided by fact, science and public health expertise. As the President's guidelines note, widespread testing, personal protective equipment, and contact tracing are critical to lifting restrictions and reviving the economy; for that reason, the nation's governors yesterday again urged the Federal government to ensure that all states have these resources. I remain in contact with Governor Sununu of New Hampshire and Governor Scott of Vermont regarding actions that may be appropriate for the northern New England region. My Administration, through the Department of Economic and Community Development, has been connecting with individual economic sectors across the state to devise a plan for how we gradually reopen the Maine economy. Those decisions, of course, are driven first and foremost by the need to protect the public health. We will release details of the plan in the near future."	N/A	Click Here

Multi-State Councils	Executive Action	Executive Press Releases - California, Oregon, Washington	California Governor Gavin Newsom, Oregon Governor Kate Brown, and Washington Governor Jay Inslee have announced that their states will work together on a shared approach for reopening their economies – one that identifies clear indicators for communities to restart public life and business. While each state is building a state-specific plan, the states have agreed to the following principles as we build out a West Coast framework: The governors states that their residents' health comes first. As home to one in six Americans and gateway to the rest of the world, the West Coast has an outsized stake in controlling and ultimately defeating COVID-19. Health outcomes and science – not politics - will guide these decisions. Modifications to states' stay at home orders must be made based off our understanding of the total health impacts of COVID-19, including: the direct impact of the disease on our communities; the health impact of measures introduced to control the spread in communities — particularly felt by those already experiencing social disadvantage prior to COVID-19; and the health care systems ability to ensure care for those who may become sick with COVID-19 and other conditions. This effort will be guided by data. The states need to see a decline in the rate of spread of the virus before large-scale reopening, and we will be working in coordination to identify the best metrics to guide this. The states will only be effective by working together. Each state will work with its local leaders and communities within its borders to understand what's happening on the ground and adhere to our agreed upon approach. The governors' statement said that the number one priority when analyzing when best to reopen our economy is the health and safety of our citizens. We will make decisions based on facts, science, and recommendations from experts in health care, business, labor, and education. The governors' also said that they will closely examine at least these four factors when determining when best to reopen the economy: sustained control of the rate of new infections and hospitalizations; enhanced ability to test and trace; sufficient health care capacity to handle resurgence; and best practices for social distancing in the workplace. The framework sets specific prerequisites based on science, which Oregon communities must meet to begin reopening, and also outlines the actions Oregon must take to move forward. In order to begin reopening communities, Oregon must first slow the growth of COVID-19, as well as acquire adequate personal protective equipment to protect health care workers and first responders. Once those prerequisites are met, Oregon can begin to reopen by: 1) Ramping up COVID-19 testing capacity in every region of Oregon; 2) Developing robust contact tracing systems to track and contain COVID-19 cases; and 3) Establishing a quarantine and isolation program for new cases. A presentation entitled Reopening Oregon was attained by local media. Pennsylvania	Legislative Action	House Co-Sponsorship Memorandum	Representative Jake Wheatley, Jr. (D) has announced his intent to sponsor legislation to increase compensation during the corona virus pandemic. In his memo, he said: "Times like this call for bold action, which is why I will be introducing HB 2380, the Emergency Relief for COVID-19 Workers Act. This is an unprecedented piece of legislation aimed at giving widespread relief to those affected by the global pandemic COVID-19. As representatives of the people, it is important we respond to their needs during this time of crisis. I'm offering an extensive list of combined relief efforts particularly directed toward front line, life-sustaining workers, but ultimately all Pennsylvania workers. First and foremost, the bill provides additional wages to essential workers. If an essential worker is making less than $15 an hour, they will be eligible to earn the difference for hours they worked during the health emergency. For example, if a worker makes $10 an hour, they will be eligible for an additional $5 an hour during that time. For workers who makes more than $15 an hour, they will be eligible for an additional $3 per hour during the health emergency. This supplemental wage will be available from the time of March 1, 2020 and ends one month after the emergency is declared over. Second, my legislation will prohibit employers from requiring employees to use their Paid Time Off directly preceding being laid off because of the health emergency. This is a senseless and malicious practice that I would like to see abolished completely, but the bill will only suspend it temporarily during COVID-19. This prohibition will be in place from April 1, 2020 and end one month after the emergency is declared over. Third, House Bill 2380 will suspend all mortgage and rent payments for those who have lost their job due to the pandemic. This would take effect for the time beginning April 1, 2020 and ending one month after the emergency is declared over. Landlords will be able to apply for reimbursement from the State for lost rent during this period. Any business with less than 50 employees who has not received federal stimulus money will also be eligible for this benefit. Finally, my legislation would allow any essential employee who works more than 150 hours during the emergency to apply to have their student loans forgiven in full. The employee must provide proof they were an essential employee and must also provide proof of hours worked. This legislation will be paid for by a bond not to exceed $10 billion."	1st Chamber	Click Here

Pennsylvania	Legislative Action	House Co-Sponsorship Memo	Representatives Jennifer O'Mara (D) and Pam Snyder (D) have announced their intent to sponsor legislation for employees on the frontlines responding to coronavirus right now. In the memo, they said: "Nurses, doctors, EMS, police, firefighters, pharmacists, grocery store employees and so many others are on the frontlines responding to coronavirus right now. They are keeping our health facilities operating, transporting our vulnerable family members and neighbors to get care, and making sure emergency services are still ready for any tragedy that strikes. These people are 'essential employees' in every sense of the word as they are protecting our well-being. Odds are that these everyday heroes will come in personal contact with COVID-19. Workers compensation is currently available to them if they get coronavirus; however, they're still required to prove that COVID-19 is occurring more in their occupation than in the general population. Given the sacrifices that these essential employees are making to keep us safe, we are introducing legislation to eliminate this burden of proof on workers who have contracted COVID-19. Under this bill, coronavirus will be presumed to be an occupational disease for employees of life-sustaining businesses and occupations. Professionals in each of these fields are asking us to make this change happen."	1st Chamber	Click Here
Pennsylvania	Legislative Action	House Co-Sponsorship Memo	Representative Adam Ravenstahl (D) has announced his intent to sponsor legislation to support workers on the front-line of the coronavirus pandemic. In the memo, he said: "We need to have the backs of those workers battling the COVID-19 pandemic. Whether these employees work in emergency services, food service, at gas stations, grocery stores, health care facilities, pharmacies, waste management or any other life-sustaining job, we need to be there for them like they've been there for us. Our frontline workers are at an increased risk of COVID-19 exposure as they sacrifice their health and safety serving our community and families. It is without question that our legislature must act now to make sure these workers have the support of every one of us. It is for these many reasons that I will be introducing legislation to support all workers employed in a life-sustaining business during the declaration of a disaster or public health emergency (including COVID-19). If a life-sustaining worker contracts an infectious disease that requires hospitalization, quarantine, isolation or other controlled measures, my bill establishes the presumption that the worker's medical condition or inability to work was a result of their work-related duties. As such, the worker would not be required to use sick time, vacation time, personal time or any other accrued paid-time off or contractual-time off to cover the period the worker is unable to work. Furthermore, the worker would be eligible and qualified for workers' compensation during the period of incapacitation or inability to work."	1st Chamber	Click Here

Washington	Executive Action	Executive Press Release	Governor Jay Inslee (D) said it is unlikely many restrictions under the "Stay Home, Stay Healthy" order will be modified before May 4. Depending on health projections for the spread of the virus, some distancing restrictions may be in place for weeks or months to come. "In the coming days, we will receive additional health modeling projecting the course of this virus," Inslee said. "We hope it will give us cause to begin lifting certain restrictions." The return to public life will occur in measured steps. It will be guided by science and informed by our public health needs, our ability to mitigate impacts, and the response of Washington communities.  According to the plan, the state will facilitate a safe start and transition to economic recovery. Businesses should prepare for interventions to be rolled back slowly and to implement requirements for reopening. No order has been rescinded at this time.
