Palliative Care Is... Strengthening approaches to palliative and end-of-life care in homeless and harm reduction settings: launching a discussion-based curriculum

October 27, 2026 | 12 - 1:30 p.m. ET

In this webinar you will hear from community-based researchers, palliative care practitioners, and frontline workers part of co-developing this new curriculum. We will show you the curriculum package, share how and why it was developed, give some ideas for how to use it, and have some discussion. We look forward to seeing you!

By the end of this webinar, participants will be able to:

- Describe how a palliative approach to care can improve quality of life and reduce suffering for people experiencing serious illness in contexts of homelessness, poverty, racism, and other forms of structural inequity.
- Explore how the Palliative Care Is... discussion-based curriculum can be used flexibly to support conversations about serious illness, planning, care, grief, and loss across community and healthcare settings.
- Consider how shared learning across health, palliative care, housing, harm reduction, outreach, and community services can strengthen collaboration and support more person-centred and equitable care.
