

Information as Currency

I recently was listening to a Podcast and heard the term “information is currency” in this 24/7 news-cycle digital age. While this statement makes perfect sense, and seems terribly obvious when we think about it, I instantly thought of the Half Hollow Hills Community Library as a provider of “free information/currency.” In a global market where news is digested and leads to instant implications, it is imperative that we stay on top of the most relevant and factual financial information.

"Information is the currency of democracy." -Thomas Jefferson

The library offers access to 70+ subscription based databases. These include The Wall Street Journal, Business Source Premier, LawDepot, Standard & Poor's NetAdvantage, Weiss Insurance Ratings, and many more that would prove helpful to anyone looking to stay up to date on the latest information on the business landscape.

For any assistance or guidance accessing these databases, never hesitate to contact the Adult Reference Department!

