11:00-11:15 Welcome and Review of Agenda
   - Anne Jordan, Manager of Criminal Process and Specialty Dockets, State of Maine Courts

11:15-12:15 Policing, Police Reform and the Rise in Violent Crime

   Moderator: Chris Asplen, Executive Director, NCJA
   Keynote:
   - Thaddeus Johnson, Assistant Professor, Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology, Andrew Young School of Policy Studies, Georgia State University and Senior Fellow, Council on Criminal Justice
   Panel:
   - Frank Russo, Director of Government Affairs, National District Attorneys Association
   - Tim Richardson, Senior Legislative Liaison, Fraternal Order of Police

   Violent crime is rising leading local communities to find ways to respond to their citizens’ calls for heightened police presence while maintaining a commitment to more just policing practices. Members of Congress are seeking to position their parties to best advantage in the run-up to the midterm elections. This important conversation will discuss how law enforcement, Congress and the Biden Administration are navigating these competing pressures.

12:15-1:00 Current Trends in Juvenile Justice

   Moderator: Joe Thome, Director, Colorado Department of Public Safety
   - James Dold, CEO & Founder, Human Rights for Kids
   - Naomi Evans, Executive Director, Coalition for Juvenile Justice

   Twenty years ago, advocates embarked on a campaign to reduce youth detention and unnecessary contact with law enforcement and the adult justice system. Today, youth detention is down markedly and policymakers have a better understanding of brain development and the impact of trauma and victimization on young people. This session will examine how we got here and look ahead at the movement to reform juvenile justice. The conversation will also include a discussion about legislation in Congress focused on youth and the justice system.

1:00-1:15 Break
1:15-1:45 A View from the Department of Justice

Moderator: Chris Asplen, Executive Director, NCJA

- Rachel Rossi, Deputy Associate Attorney General and Hate Crimes Coordinator

In this session, Deputy Associate Attorney General Rachel Rossi will discuss Biden Administration priorities on criminal justice reform, hate crimes, violence reduction and justice assistance grant programs.

1:45-2:30 A View from the Biden Administration: Policy and Funding for the Justice-Involved

Moderator: Steve Woolworth, President and CEO, Evergreen Treatment Services, Seattle, WA

- Richard Cho, Senior Advisor for Housing and Services, Office of the Secretary, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Alex Green, Chief of Reentry, Office of Workforce Investment, U.S. Department of Labor
- Joseph Bullock, Senior Public Health Advisor, National Mental Health Substance Use Policy Laboratory, Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Agencies across the federal government are focusing on the needs of the justice-involved population to ease the collateral consequences of victimization and incarceration. Many agencies are making funding available to states and localities to help address needs and break down silos, including in job training, transitional and stable housing and mental health and substance use disorder treatment. Senior officials from three key agencies will discuss their agencies’ efforts and available resources.

2:30-3:00 Break

3:00-4:00 Crisis Response and Coordination with Behavioral Health

Moderator: Simone Greene, Program Manager, National Criminal Justice Association

- Eric Rafia-Yuan, M.D., Professor, University of California San Diego and Jeanne Spurlock Congressional Fellow, Office of Rep. Tony Cárdenas
- Shannon Scully, Senior Advisor, Justice and Crisis Response Policy, Government Relations, Policy and Advocacy, National Alliance on Mental Illness
- Ayesha Delany-Brumsey, Director, Behavioral Health Division, Council of State Governments Justice Center

Justice and behavioral health systems are recognizing that one of the most important steps they can take to reduce arrest, incarceration and collateral consequences is to deflect people in need to community-based treatment. The transition in July 2022 to the 988 three-digit dialing number for the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline gives states, localities and community-based service providers a launching off point to build a crisis response system appropriate to their communities and available services. Also, Congress is actively considering legislation to help support these efforts. The speakers are deeply involved in this issue on Capitol Hill and in the states.
4:00-4:45  A View from Capitol Hill: Current Legislation and Future Goals

Moderator: Ron LeGrand, Policy Director, National Criminal Justice Association

- Chastidy Burns, Criminal Justice and Civil Rights Counsel for Chair Dick Durbin, Senate Judiciary Committee
- Ryan Raybould, Chief Counsel for Senator John Cornyn, Senate Judiciary Committee
- Mauri Gray, Deputy Chief Counsel for Chair Jerold Nadler, House Judiciary Committee
- Jason Cervenak, Chief Counsel for Ranking Member Jim Jordan, House Judiciary Committee

Senior bipartisan staff for the key committees will discuss the overall climate on Capitol Hill for criminal justice legislation and how the federal government can help support state policy and practice.

4:45-5:15  Wrap Up and Send Off

- Chris Asplon, Executive Director, National Criminal Justice Association
- Elizabeth Pyke, Director of Government Affairs, National Criminal Justice Association
- Allison Badger, Project Director, National Criminal Justice Association

NCJA staff will close the Summit by highlighting the support NCJA can provide its members in strategic planning, policy, practice, stakeholder outreach and congressional education.