GRILL PHIL

Phil, how often should we have the sewage pumping station serviced?

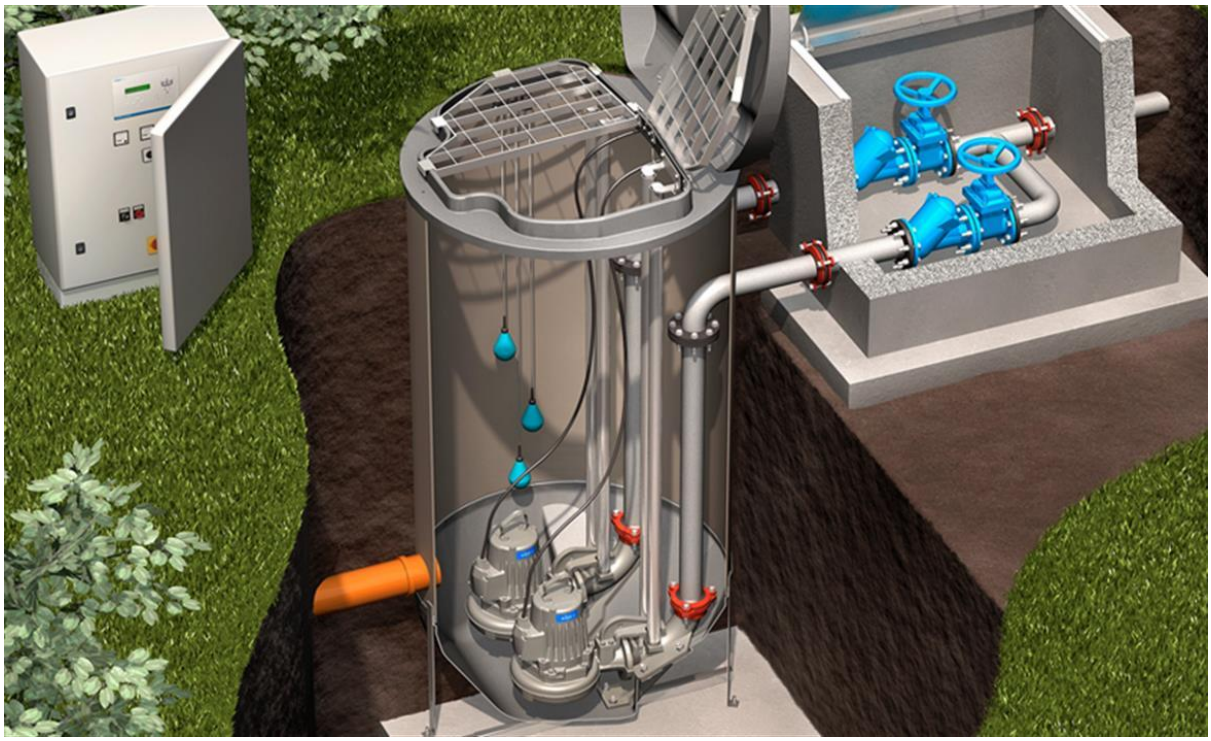

Your sewage pumping stations need to be serviced on a regular basis to avoid costly breakdowns.

In a domestic situation where a unit is serving a single home, annual servicing is recommended.

Where there are more than one dwelling, or in a commercial situation, servicing needs to be more often at 3–6-month intervals.

Just because sewage systems are out of sight, they should not be forgotten. If you would like to learn about a service contract, please let me know.
