Episode overview: This is the inaugural episode of the CoVPN’s COVID in Black discussion series. We will speak to and highlight the activities the panelists are involved in to engage their communities and networks in clinical trial research. Our focus will be on the importance of building trust in Black communities to facilitate diverse enrollment in clinical trials. The panelists will discuss the importance of increasing awareness and knowledge about COVID-19 clinical trials, factors to consider when making decisions to enroll in COVID-19 clinical trials, and what is needed to support acceptability and uptake of an approved COVID-19 vaccine in Black communities.
