

Sustainable Event Planning - hosted by the Event Planners Practitioners Community (EPPC)

When: December 9, 2024 at 11am (via zoom, register at the link below)

Learn about:

The Sustainable Events Toolkit

Guidance for working with vendors

Resources on reducing waste from campus events

Regulatory requirements for event planners to reduce waste and donate edible food

What to expect:

Whether you're hosting a 10-person lunch or a 1,000-person conference, your event can reduce waste, conserve resources, and set an example of Stanford's commitment to sustainability. Join this session to learn about resources to support you in planning more sustainable events. Emily Blackwell from Residential & Dining Enterprises (R&DE) and former Living Lab Fellow for the Stanford Doerr School of Sustainability will dive into the Sustainable Events Toolkit, which includes guidance for working with vendors, templates for communicating with catering services and engaging attendees, and much more! Angela Vincent & Kevin Martinez from the Office of Sustainability will provide resources on reducing waste from campus events and outline the regulatory requirements for event planners to reduce waste and donate edible food.
