NCFA Social Media Campaign Update

Our new social media campaign continues to gain momentum, and we couldn't be more encouraged by the response.

In just a short time, our videos have reached over 250,000 views, introducing the North Carolina Fisheries Association and our message to a much broader audience than we typically reach through our weekly updates and member communications.

Just as importantly, we're seeing a tremendous amount of engagement. Hundreds of people are taking the time to comment, ask questions, share their experiences, and participate in meaningful discussions about North Carolina's fisheries. Whether people agree or disagree, those conversations create opportunities to share facts and increase understanding of the issues facing our fishing communities.

Thank you to everyone who has watched, liked, shared, and commented. Your support is helping us expand our reach and ensure that the voices of North Carolina's commercial fishing families are being heard.

If you haven't already, be sure to follow us on Facebook and YouTube, and please continue sharing our content. Every view, comment, and share helps us reach someone new.
