Chris Choate
Owner & Operator
Delta Worms

Chris Choate is the owner/operator of Delta Worms, “We Build Soil.” Delta Worms’ mission is to build the finest garden soil for backyard gardeners in East Contra Costa County.

Chris is a retired professional with 40 years of experience in the California commercial composting industry. Since the early 90’s Chris has played a leading role for many communities in the start-up of food waste composting systems; the City of San Francisco was the largest.

In retirement (8 years), Chris has focus his interest in helping backyard gardeners build the healthiest soil and plants possible. He teaches about the elements or essence of healthy soil: soil structure, nutrients, and soil biology.

Chris has a B.S. in Civil Engineering from San Jose State University and has been a registered Professional Engineer in the State of California throughout his career.
