Canada invests in climate competitive jobs for young people

Funding / Skills Development

As youth in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and across Canada struggle with employment, the Government of Canada has said they intend to provide support with next steps by building more pathways to rewarding careers and skills development.

This week, the Honourable Tim Hodgson, Minister of Energy and Natural Resources, and the Honourable Patty Hajdu, Minister of Jobs and Families, announced $30 million to create 900 employment and skills training opportunities over two years for youth across the country in the natural resource sectors, including energy, forestry, mining, earth sciences and clean technology.

Through the Science and Technology Internship Program (STIP) – Green Jobs, employers can apply for funding to hire, train and mentor youth aged 15 to 30 for up to 12 months. These jobs provide hands-on experience to help young Canadians develop marketable skills and support Canada's

9 ways to turn LMI into employment outcomes

This week for #MotivatingMondays, we talked about how labour market information can be valuable to job developers and other employer engagement professionals. LMI is very much an untapped resource of business and economic activity that leads to 'emerging job opportunities'. We discussed the clean economy. Since 2017, STIP – Green Jobs has created more than 6,000 jobs and skills training opportunities for young people in all provinces and territories. On average, about 80 percent of youth found full-time employment after participating in the program.

The STIP – Green Jobs program is part of the Government of Canada's Youth Employment and Skills Strategy (YESS), which supports young Canadians in successfully transitioning into the labour market.

Employers and youth can apply for funding through 10 organizations:

- Clean Foundation Nova Scotia
- Electricity Human Resources Canada
- Environmental Careers Organization of Canada
- Indigenous Clean Energy Social Enterprise
- First Nations of Quebec and Labrador Sustainable Development Institute
- Mining Industry Human Resources Council
- Pinnguaq Association
- Project Learning Tree Canada
- Student Energy
- United Nations Association in Canada

The Youth Employment and Skills Strategy is a horizontal initiative, which received $307.9 million in supplementary funding over two years from 2026 to 2028 through Budget 2025. The Strategy involves various federal departments and agencies, including Natural Resources Canada. STIP – Green Jobs has been part of the Government of Canada's Youth Employment and Skills Strategy since 1997.

Manitoba Expands Invitations Under Strategic Recruitment Initiatives

Immigration / Workforce Development

Manitoba has issued new invitations to skilled workers under its Strategic Recruitment Initiatives, strengthening its efforts to attract in-demand talent. The latest draw focuses on candidates who meet specific labour market needs and have strong ties to the province, increasing their chances of selection.

However, in the previous draw, the Manitoba PNP sent 46 Letters of Advice to Apply, and so far this year, Manitoba has been inviting 263 skilled individuals to apply for Canada PR.

importance of LMI and how critical it is to apply for jobs before the employer has even thought to place the advertisement.
