

Get prepared for wildfire season beginning July 1st. On April 27th from 7 PM to 9PM, AAUW will host a virtual webinar where you can question wildfire experts. Learn the steps to take before you evacuate that will help protect you and minimize fire damage to your home. The speakers will be:

Dr. Craig Clements, Director of San Jose State University's Wildfire Interdisciplinary Research Center. His research focuses on "mega-wildfire" behavior and gathering data that can be analyzed to predict how the fire will behave.

Dr. Amanda Stasiewicz is a wildfire social scientist who studies how people behave during wildfire evacuations and how their choices impact the actions of first responders. She also researches wildfire management policy and communities adapted to existing in wildfire prone areas.

Dr. Kate Wilkin, researches how communities can recover from wildfires and how people can reduce fire damage through fuel treatments, the creation of defensible space and by making homes more fire resistant.

Chief Marcus Hernandez, the new Battalion Chief Fire Marshall for the City of Morgan Hill Fire Department. Chief Hernandez previously worked for the CAL FIRE Land Use Planning Program.
