

Apply for a Counseling Fellowship

Are you a current counseling student committed to providing addiction counseling services to underserved and underrepresented communities? You may be eligible for one of up to 40 master's-level addiction counseling fellowships through the NBCC Minority Fellowship Program (MFP).

Each $15,000 fellowship includes a sustainability package with access to mentors, professional resources, and much more.

Basic Eligibility

- ◆ Applicants must be a U.S. citizen or have permanent resident status.
- ◆ Applicants must not already possess a master's degree in a behavioral health field.
- ◆ Applicants must not receive any other federal program training funds (except for federal loans or work-study programs).

Applicants must be enrolled and in good standing in one of the following programs:

- a Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP)-accredited master's-level addiction counseling program or other master's-level counseling program with a concentration in addictions.
- a regionally accredited master's-level addiction counseling program or other master's-level counseling program with a concentration in addictions.
- an addictions program accredited by the National Addictions Studies Accreditation Commission (NASAC).
- ◆ Applicants must commit to providing substance use disorder services to one or more of the following populations (underserved minority communities, child/adolescent and geriatric groups, minority communities in inner cities and rural areas, minority persons [including LGBTQIA2S+], or those who are veterans or are from military families) within 1 year of graduation and must commit to providing such services for the duration of 2 years post-graduation.

For more detailed eligibility information or to apply, visit nbccf.org/programs.