Message from Kevin McDuff

This has been a long, long year that has gone by so, so fast. I arrived in the summer to a new school community, a new governance structure and a new set of licensing and governmental regulations. Looking back now, I remember feeling like I didn't know nearly enough about this job and now I know that I knew less than I thought. For me, it has been a year of learning, but as the year comes to an end, I am genuinely excited for the 2022-23 school year and what we can accomplish together.

I don't know how to express in words the gratitude I feel for this community without it sounding contrived. I have been so grateful for the support I have received in coming into a new community and a new role. I am especially grateful for coming to a school with such a talented group of colleagues. Truly, I have been so impressed with their professionalism and dedication to bringing an exceptional Waldorf education to the students. I am equally grateful for the support I have felt from the parent community. I am planning on creating opportunities next year to interact with the parent community in a deeper, more immediate way, something I'll share more about when we resume in the Fall.

Thank you all for the gift of being part of WSOC and I wish you all a wonderful summer.
