What can I do for you?

Marketing and Communications on Demand

Consulting & supporting you in marketing and communications

I am your partner from a simple creation of presentations and flyers or up to a full development of marketing and communication strategies.

For more than one decade I was the Director of the Marketing and Communications department in one of Germany's largest manufacturing facilities for semiconductor products. My responsibilities included all site marketing activities, internal and external communications, management communications, event management, crisis and issue management and guest management. My broad and wide ranging experience allows me to support you in compiling your target group oriented communications in a professional and creative way.

Cultural Training

Helping you to understand why Germans do what they do

I was born and raised in Germany and worked in a corporate environment in one of Germany's largest high tech companies for almost two decades. With this experience I will provide you an insight into Germany's culture at work and in everyday life in an authentic and realistic way – always tailored to your specific needs.

Project Support

Supporting you in special projects during busy times

For my entire work life I have been leading and supporting projects in multiple areas of the corporate world. You will benefit from my ability to successfully manage collaborative projects that impact your organizations visibility, strategic direction and performance.
