

ACTIVITIES TO DO AT HOME

Pete the Cat Dance Mat

Have your child trace their shoe on different colored paper and cut out the footprint. Use the footprints as a game of twister (right hand blue, left foot red) or just let your child have a dance party to their favorite music- Ask your child to dance on only the red feet or blue feet. <https://s18670.pcdn.co/wp-content/uploads/pete-the-cat-dance-mat-400x300.jpg> Tape the feet to the carpet or an old plastic table cloth if you want to save the game for a few days.

Make Your Own Shoe

Use the attached outline of a shoe (or a plain piece of paper and your own ideas) to create your very own shoe. Get creative! Use crayons, markers, paint- whatever you have at home. You can design your shoe or make a picture of shoes you would like to buy. Sound out or have an adult help spell a few words to describe your new shoes you've created. Try writing a describing word- color, texture. Write a few words to tell about an adventure you could go on in your new shoes.

Measuring With Shoes

How many shoes long are you? Lay down and use a collection of shoes to measure how long you are from the tips of your toes to the top of your head. How many shoes long is your grownup? What else can you measure in the house? Are there other things you can use to measure- How many books long you are? How many toy cars long are you?

Join Pete's Band

Using materials around the house creates an instrument you can use to play along while you listen to some Pete the Cat songs on his website. <http://www.petethecatbooks.com/songs/> Try attaching string or rubber bands to empty boxes or paper towel rolls. Can you fill a cup with beans or rice for a shaker? Can you use a spoon to bang on a pot?

Did you Know?

Pete the Cat has a show on Amazon prime. While we should still try to limit screen time with our littlest learners, these episodes might be a great change for family movie night.
