

TURKEY CAUGHT RED-HANDED AS A CORRUPT FOREIGN INFLUENCER

¹Federal prosecutors say actions of an alleged FARA violator employed by the Turkish government demonstrates how a foreign government may seek to manipulate the U.S. Congress.

These foreign entities hired Immad Zuberi for "backdoor influence."

7 B. ZUBERI LOBBIED CONGRESS AS AN AGENT OF THE TURKISH
8 GOVERNMENT
9 Zuberi's actions at the direction of the Turkish government
10 demonstrate how a foreign government may seek to manipulate the U.S.
11 Congress to do its bidding by employing proxies willing to violate
12 U.S. law. As detailed below, Zuberi concealed from the public his 13 orchestration of this attempt to manipulate Congress.

19 This case does not merely ignite "suspicions." Public opinion
20 is already rife with suspicions that foreign influence has 21 compromised our elections and confidence in our democratic
22 institutions has weakened.³ The Zuberi case explicitly verifies
23 through evidentiary proof pervasive, corrupt foreign interference
24 with our elections and policy-making processes.

21 obtain the results they sought. These foreign entities resorted to 22 paying Zuberi—who was not a registered lobbyist—millions of dollars
23 for backdoor influence. Zuberi solicited his foreign clients for
