

Updated March 2023: After agreeing to stay on for an additional few months beyond my December resignation date, my final work day on staff is March 17, 2023. Once again, I am grateful to have been able to serve alongside each of you these last 2 years.

Original Resignation Letter:

November 22, 2022

To my colleagues and friends at Broadway Christian Church,

Two years ago when I was invited to be a part of the staff team at Broadway, my life and future looked very different than it does now. As I have shared along the way, the last few years have been full of transition for my family and I. Last summer I took a few weeks away from work to spend time with my children and to allow my body and soul to settle. My hope was, with the settling of my spirit, that a clearer picture of what I want to do with a career would surface. It took a few months and while I celebrate the clarity I've found, I also feel sad that it means I must resign my position as Communications Director at Broadway effective December 23, 2022.

I am ever grateful to Broadway for the soft and safe place to land during the most painful transitions of my life thus far. I do not doubt that we were brought together at the right time for purposes that we didn't yet know when we met. Thank you for your welcome and investment.

I realize that searching for staff at this time of year creates a greater degree of difficulty. I will pray with you about who is to join the team next. I am open to carrying some responsibility beyond my end date if that is needed.

Thankful in this season,

Casey Twidwell
