

Frank was ordained to the priesthood 28 years ago by Bishop Saunders. He has served parishes in East Carolina, was the Canon to the Ordinary, and later was rector in New York City. He retired in 2016 from Bishop Gadsden Episcopal Retirement Community in Charleston, South Carolina as chaplain. Since returning to North Carolina he has been interim rector at St. James the Fisherman, Shallotte. He assumes his duties as the interim on January 5 at St. Paul's in Clinton.

Living on the family farm in Pender County, he has been restoring the house and tobacco pack house. The house was recently registered with the local historical society.
