A Board Problem

BOLD

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

“Boards are no more diverse than they were 30 years ago, and current recruitment priorities indicate this is unlikely to change.”

- 2017 data from BoardSource determined that boards were no more diverse in 2017 than in 2015. Their data indicated that 90 percent of nonprofit chief executives are white, 90% of board chairs are white, as are 84% of nonprofit board members, and 27% of all nonprofit boards are entirely white.

BOLD Curriculum

Each session is designed to help participants gain a better understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a nonprofit board member. The program provides application-based learning and case studies with regional nonprofit leaders.

Taisha Rojas-Parker
Nonprofit leader that transforms personal mindset and company culture

“ Being a part of BOLD has been energizing and eye opening! I've realized that being a voice on a board with a non-profit perspective adds a deeper understanding of the nonprofit landscape which can be very valuable in strategy, programming, and fundraising. I personally enjoy being in non-profit and look forward to being creative and innovative in a different non-profit space. Getting a better understanding of how boards work has made me appreciate the strengths of our organization's board and how our partnership depends on one another. With burnout being so prevalent in our industry, I appreciate BOLD for giving me the opportunity to serve other non-profit organizations with as much commitment and passion as I serve my own organization. ”
