ANCESTOR SIMULATION

a series of paintings by Derek J. Simons

The chemical-reaction myth of creation is a dead end building only upon the past allows for a stagnation of ideas and innovation, all work must contain a high degree of novelty and incremental improvement on the versions that came before...

you are solving for the imbalances and disasters of imperfection by leaning forward and embracing the singularity, every aspect of your work will be up for review and recoding, only imaginative thought patterns are legitimate contributions.

If you understand this, please continue...
