

ASN Launches Understanding Nutritional Science Video Competition

The Understanding Nutritional Science competition promotes the creation of short videos that will ultimately help the lay public to better understand and evaluate hot topics in nutrition science. Open to ASN members only: undergraduate and graduate students, postdoctoral trainees, medical interns, residents, or fellows, and early career professionals. The deadline to enter is February 28, 2018. Learn more, including rules and guidelines for entry, here: nutrition.org/contest

All of Us* Wants Your Nutrition Ideas!

Are you interested in helping researchers understand more about why people get sick or stay healthy? If so, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) needs your nutrition research ideas to help make the All of Us Research Program the best resource it can be to support future research. The All of Us Research Program aims to build one of the largest, most diverse datasets of its kind to help speed up research on many different health conditions. The NIH wants you to tell them what unique research questions you think the All of Us Research Program could address. Your input will be considered at a Research Priorities Workshop in March 2018 and ultimately help NIH build out the All of Us research platform with the tools needed to answer those questions. See the current research protocol for more details.

Ready to get started? If you don't already have an account with IdeaScale, creating one is easy! Simply click the "register" link in the upper right-hand corner and sign up using your email address and a password. Once you've signed in, click the "All of Us Research Priorities Workshop Use Cases" box below to submit your ideas and comments or to see the ideas others have already submitted.