

WMRL Welcomes:

Rachel Babylon

A little about Rachel:

In WMRL, I help Susie, Dennis, and Jill with various assignments. I do cataloging with Susie, ILL deliveries with Dennis, and create collections for WHILBR with Jill. I love doing something different each hour and working with each of them. Everyone in WMRL is wonderful and has welcomed me with open arms.

1. I'm currently taking classes online through University of Maryland University College to get my Bachelor's Degree in English.
 2. I'm getting married this year at the end of October!
 3. I love cats. My car is covered in cat stickers and so is my lanyard. I have two cats -- Perseus and Chocolate.
 4. I love watching competition shows! Cooking and baking shows are my favorites, though I also love Project Runway. I also binge-watch Netflix on a regular basis with my fiancé, Connor.
 5. I'm currently writing a novel. I started it in a creative writing class at HCC. It was supposed to be a flash fiction piece, but my professor and classmates encouraged me to expand it. I participated in NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month) and wrote around 55,000 words in just that month. There's still a lot to write, but I hope to publish it one day!
 6. I collect pencils. I have close to 600. None of them are the same, and none of them sharpened. Some are from other countries or attractions in the US, while others are cute, themed ones from various stores.
 7. I used to walk to the small Smithsburg library all the time when I was little. When they began building the new branch, I held a lemonade stand at the end of a parade across the street from my house. I made 60 dollars and donated all of it to the library. I got to be in the groundbreaking, and I was in the newspaper, too.

Welcome, Rachel!
