Concordia University, St. Paul, is leading the way in higher education as the first college in the nation to implement a second tuition reset, returning traditional undergraduate tuition to its 2006 rate of $21,700 for the 2027-28 academic year.

As the cost of higher education rises, Concordia St. Paul is putting students first by making college degrees more affordable, providing transparent pricing, and helping students pursue their callings. “CSP has long championed new programs and initiatives that keep students first, and today is another step in that journey,” says the Rev. Dr. Brian Friedrich, President of Concordia University, St. Paul. “We know that a Christ-centered Lutheran education changes the lives of our students and their families. Wherever our graduates go, they touch the lives of countless people within their workplaces and communities, leading with knowledge, integrity, wisdom, and compassion.”

Concordia St. Paul also continues to offer its Church Work Tuition Guarantee; all church work students preparing to serve LCMS congregations and schools pay $0 in tuition each year. Additional scholarships from LCMS congregations and districts or other external sources may be used to lower the cost of room and board for church work students.
