

A SHIP'S JOURNEY TO PORT OF REDWOOD CITY

PACIFIC OCEAN

Cargo ships arrive from the open ocean, traveling across the Pacific from ports across the globe.

GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE

Ships enter into San Francisco Bay under the iconic bridge which offers 200 ft. of clearance.

SAN FRANCISCO-OAKLAND BAY BRIDGE

Ships must travel under the San Francisco Bay Bridge upon turning south, which also offers 220 ft. of clearance.

SAN MATEO BRIDGE

Then they travel through the Bay to navigate under the San Mateo Bridge's 135-ft. clearance to enter South San Francisco Bay.

PORT OF REDWOOD CITY

Ships turn into Redwood Creek Channel to the Port of Redwood City.

TURNING BASIN

When the time comes to depart, ships use a handy turning basin to follow the same path back out to the ocean.
