Natural Anti-Inflammatories

Inflammation is the #1 enemy of healthy joints. While anti-inflammatory drugs can have harmful side effects, nature provides a host of safe anti-inflammatories that will help keep chronic inflammation at bay in younger dogs, and reduce painful joint swelling in dogs with arthritis. Here are some of our favorites:

- Fiber-filled veggies: Sweet potato, acorn squash, pumpkin
- Antioxidant-packed fruits: Blueberries, cherries, peeled apple, cantaloupe
- Vitamin-rich veggies: Broccoli, cauliflower, zucchini
- Leafy greens: Spinach, kale, collards
- Fatty fish: Salmon, mackerel, tuna, sardines
- Lean protein: Chicken, turkey
- Omega-3 oils: Fish oil, green lipped mussel oil
- Coconut oil (mix in with dog's food or use to sauté dog's veggies)
- Flaxseed oil (drizzle over dog's food)

Equally important to healthy joints is the health of the muscles and soft tissues that support the joints. If a dog starts to slow down from arthritis, the “if you don't use it, you lose it” principle kicks in and they start to lose muscle mass, compounding their joint issues. What this means is that you want to choose quality protein sources that are high in both bioavailability and digestibility. These include:

- Egg
- Fish
- Beef
- Chicken
- Lamb
- Rice

When picking your pup's food, ensure one of these quality protein sources is listed in the first few ingredients. And of course, whole foods should always be a focus.
