

The new legislative session started in Harrisburg on February 3, 2023, and Governor Josh Shapiro and Lt. Governor Austin Davis was sworn in on January 17, 2023.

Currently, the Pennsylvania House of Representatives is divided 102 Democrats to 100 Republicans. There is currently, 1 vacancy because Rep. Lynda Culver (R-Columbia) on January 31, 2023, won the special election for Former Sen. John Gordner's seat. Senator Gordner resigned earlier this year to become General Counsel for Senate Republicans.

When the House convened on January 3rd, the House elected Rep. Mark Rozzi (D-Berks) as speaker of the House. Seeing as Democrats now hold a constitutional majority, there are rumors that Democrats will try to remove Speaker Rozzi and replace him with House Democratic Leader Joanna McClinton (D-Philadelphia). Following the three special elections that took place on February 7th, the House returned last week (February 21, 23, and 24th) to special session to continue work on opening a statutory window for victims of childhood sexual abuse. The House is expected to return to normal session February 28th.

With Rep. Culver's recent victory in the Senate, the Pennsylvania Senate will now have its full complement of 50 legislators who are divided 28 Republicans and 22 Democrats.
