Nearly 80 associations representing a wide range of constituencies – including advocates for children, nonprofits, the United Way, child care and academic facilities, the hospitality industry, small business and the medical community – sent the following letter to Gov. Tom Wolf urging him to sign into law H.B. 1737, legislation which includes temporary safe harbor protections against unwarranted COVID-19 related lawsuits for employers and organizations complying with public health guidelines.

A Copy of the Letter is Below:

To the Honorable Governor Tom Wolf:

On behalf of our organizations representing a broad range of industries and employers throughout Pennsylvania, we urge you to sign H.B. 1737 or allow it to become law. This bill provides the business, nonprofit, education, child serving provider and healthcare communities with temporary safe harbor from unwarranted lawsuits, while not precluding appropriate action against bad actors or those acting irresponsibly.

Healthcare professionals and facilities continue heroic efforts to treat COVID-19 patients and have been supported by manufacturers producing critical medical and personal protective equipment, at times reorienting entire operations. Other businesses, nonprofits, local governments, private child service providers and their employees have worked tirelessly during the pandemic to sustain communities; while other Pennsylvanians who had a successful company mere months ago have drained savings and are at risk of shuttering.

All share the prospect of an uncertain future and likely significant additional compliance costs to protect the health and safety of their employees, customers and the public. All also face the threat of unfair, opportunistic pandemic-related litigation and some Pennsylvania employers have already been targeted with unwarranted lawsuits.

For the foreseeable future, employers will be subject to strict workplace health and safety requirements and those who adopt these precautions should proceed with confidence knowing they will not be targeted with frivolous, and potentially devastating, litigation. On the other hand, those who act with gross negligence or disregard safety precautions should not be protected and we support robust enforcement against bad actors or irresponsible employers.

We appreciate your work and support up to this point and urge you to continue these efforts by providing temporary, targeted legal safe harbor for those operating in good faith and complying with relevant requirements. These protections will help employers survive, allow medical providers to direct their focus and resources to public health and are critical to facilitating an economic recovery.

Thank you.
