The Community Tax Law Project™
Helping Low-Income Taxpayers

Struggling with IRS or Virginia Tax Problems? We are here to help!

Who we are:

The Community Tax Law Project (CTLP) is the first independent, low-income taxpayer clinic dedicated to helping low and moderate income individuals and families resolve federal and state income tax issues.

What we do:

CTLP's attorneys provide free direct legal representation before the IRS and the Virginia Department of Taxation in tax audits, appeals, and collection issues, as well as before the U.S. Tax Court. CTLP also provides tailored tax legal advice.

Are you eligible?

CTLP helps Virginia residents whose incomes are too low to afford to pay for professional tax help. Individuals with income under 250% of the federal poverty guidelines based on household size qualify for CTLP's free services.

- ❑ Are you confused about IRS or Virginia tax notices?
- ❑ Do you need help in a language other than English?
- ❑ Do you have a tax dispute but can't afford legal representation?
- ❑ Do you have a tax bill you can't afford to pay?

We can assist you with tax matters, including, audits, examinations, appeals, collection issues, and more.

Your tax problems will not go away by ignoring them. Seek help to work out your tax problems now. You may have more options than you think.
