Essay Question

Directions: Read the prompt carefully and respond to all of the details described. How would you react in such a situation? It is ok if you have never been in a situation like this before. Use your best judgement and knowledge of how to work with people and animals to write a response. You may write your answer below or type and print it on a separate sheet stapled to this form.

Prompt: You are sitting at the front desk answering the phones. A man walks in with a bat in his pocket and pulls it out, presenting it to you on the palm of his bare hand. He says he just found it on the ground outside of his home. Just behind him, somebody comes in to tell you she just saw an opossum get hit on the road and that there is blood everywhere. Though she left the opossum on the road, she is clearly emotionally distraught and desperate for something to be done. At the same time, a flustered volunteer approaches you to tell you that they just noticed that one of the latches was undone on a raccoon enclosure and that there are no animals in the enclosure. The phone is ringing in the background. There are no staff members nearby. How should you proceed?
