Peg Taylor Center for Adult Day Health Care:

Diane Puckett, Founding Executive Director

Diane Puckett is the founding Executive Director of Innovative Health Care Services (IHCS). In 1985, she implemented the creation of the Peg Taylor Center for Adult Day Health Care, which was inspired by the life work of a visionary public health nurse. The Peg Taylor Center was one of the first adult day health care programs in California to serve a rural area. After starting the program in a donated facility, Diane spearheaded a three-year capital project and designed the Center's permanent home at 124 Parmac Road in Chico. She is a past President of the Board of the California Association of Adult Day Services (CAADS) and Board Member for the National Adult Day Services Association (NADSA). Prior to her career in adult day services, Diane was the Executive Director of the Community Counseling Center, which served the Santa Barbara community. She also created the first program in the nation to aid pre-school age children impacted by parental substance abuse. Diane has delayed her planned retirement from the Peg Taylor Center to aid in the response to the Camp Fire and continues to lead this effort in her role as the Center's Administrator.

Corinne Miller, Interim Executive Director

Cori Miller has served the Center for over 28 years, first as the Social Worker, and then as the Program Director and Assistant Director. Cori is now serving as the Interim Executive Director during the Center's transition to a new Executive Director. Cori is dedicated and compassionate in offering expert support for adults with chronic health conditions and their families. Her background is in social services and community programming for children and adults, and she has provided training on a national, statewide and local basis in dementia care and interdisciplinary care planning.
