

The Fair Housing Justice Center (FHJC), NY Appleseed, The Century Foundation and St. Ann & The Holy Trinity invite you to

THE HARM OF SEGREGATION

WHY WHERE WE LIVE AND LEARN MATTERS

Tuesday, October 23, 2018
6:30 - 8:00 pm
St. Ann & The Holy Trinity
157 Montague Street
Brooklyn, NY 11201

ABOUT

Join us for a dynamic evening of learning and conversation, exploring the harm of segregation and how we can work together to build the beloved community where we live and where we learn. This event is part the Building the Beloved Community interfaith initiative, organized by the FHJC, Union Theological Seminary and the Interfaith Assembly on Homelessness and Housing (IAHH). The event will feature a presentation on fair housing and a panel discussion where fair housing and school integration experts will discuss how we live and where we learn matters, and the intersections between housing segregation and school segregation.

Learn more about the Building the Beloved Community initiative at www.bbcfairhousing.org.

SPEAKERS

Caitlin Mroz, Educational Coordinator of the FHJC
Matt Gonzales, Director of The School Diversity Project at New York Appleseed
Halley Potter, Senior Fellow at The Century Foundation
Additional speakers to be announced

