Here for you and your employees during COVID-19

LOGANSPORT Memorial
WORKFORCE HEALTH

Logansport Memorial Occupational Health (Healthy Companies) is still seeing patients as usual for work-related illness and injuries.

If you are concerned about coming to the hospital to be evaluated for your illness or injury, here's how we are keeping you safe:

- All patients are being screened before entering the building for symptoms of COVID-19. Any patient who reports symptoms is assessed quickly so that they can be isolated from other patients.
- All patients are given a mask to wear when they arrive at the hospital, for the duration of their visit.
- The Occupational Health clinic has a separate waiting room inside the clinic. Patients coming to the clinic will be sent directly to the separate waiting room. No COVID-19 patients are being seen or treated in Occupational Health at this time.
- Air scrubbers and HEPA filters are placed throughout the hospital to continually clean the air for all patients. Two of the largest air scrubbers have been placed right inside the ER entrance to ensure clean air quality for all patients as they come in, regardless of what illness or injury they have.
- At this time, telehealth is not currently an option for evaluation and diagnosis, but it may become available in the near future.

If you have any questions about coming to Logansport Memorial's Occupational Health clinic for your care, please call ahead about being seen:
