In order to be a culturally relevant educator, and ensure the success of all students, individuals must first understand the interconnectivity between culturally and linguistically relevant teaching, California’s Multi-Tiered System of Support, and inclusive academic, behavior, and social-emotional learning.

Participants in this series will not only gain a thorough understanding of these connections but will also experience and compile a toolbox of research-based culturally relevant instructional practices, will develop personal implementation plan, and receive coaching feedback throughout the training series.

This will be a year-long blended learning course.
